This little grill gets around, easily

Have grill, will travel.

That's the idea this summer as Dad heads out with nothing but a 20-ounce grill in his knapsack.

Bucking the national trend toward the bigger-is-better gas grills that reign on backyard decks, Grilliput, when packed in its slim silver tube, is so small it resembles a flute.

When assembled, it's a 9-by-10-inch grill. Just build a fire on the ground below or in the compact fire bowl.

"It's an amazingly clever piece of design," says Keith Jackson, president of Industrial Revolution, a Redmond, Wash.-based manufacturer of outdoor products. "This is making it easier than ever before to grill almost anywhere."

The mini-grill is $29.99 and available at Scheels, Campmor.com and Amazon.com. The fire bowl, in stores in July, is sold separately ($12.99).
